Logging Accident Kills Island Man

CAMPBELL RIVER—A Nanaimo logger, Robert Robertson, 28, was fatally injured yesterday in an accident at a logging camp at the head of Bute Inlet on the mainland.

Details of the accident were not immediately known because of poor communication facilities with the remote logging operation.

The body was being brought from the scene by the RCMP boat Masset, which left here for Bute Inlet after the accident was reported. It was expected back some time today.

Earlier, a B.C. Airlines plane with a doctor and plasma prepared to take off for the accident scene in response to an appeal for aid. But the flight was cancelled when it was learned, just before the plane took off, that the accident victim had died.

Anti-Flood Measure

Kiernan Plumps For Fraser Dams

Construction of storage dams in the headwaters of the Fraser River, to take the peak of the summer freshet was advocated in the legislature yesterday by Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan (SC, Chilliwack) as a measure to prevent Fraser River floods.

"Building dikes higher and wider is neither the most practical, nor economical solution to long-range control of the Fraser," Mr. Kiernan said.

The Fraser River Board recently brought down a preliminary report recommending a $525,000,000 combined power and flood control program which would include 11 dams, produce 1,500,000 horsepower of hydro power and do a minimum of harm to fish.

"I am not advocating a sacrifice of fish for power. There are sufficient power resources available to us without killing off one industry to promote another, but at the same time I would not support a policy that sacrificed the best interests of the people in favor of fish," Mr. Kiernan said.

By further study the problem of fish versus power can likely be reconciled and "I am pleased to learn the two governments (federal and provincial) will continue to push the work of the Fraser River Board so we may get on with upstream storage at the earliest possible date."

Library Plan For Branches To Be Studied

A special Victoria Library board committee will study the feasibility of establishing secondary libraries in Greater Victoria.

The plan was proposed Tuesday by newly-elected chairman Robert Wallace during the board's annual meeting.

Mr. Wallace said the plan should be "thoroughly investigated during the next year."

"We don't require any elaborate new buildings," he said, but somewhere a library could be opened once or twice a week for the benefit of local area residents.

Agreeing with the plan, representative G. K. Sammon of Esquimalt suggested each municipality open its municipal hall at least one day each week.

Says Mrs. Buda Brown:

'Something Wrong' At Brannan Lake

Brannan Lake industrial school for boys was described in the legislature yesterday as a "holding unit without being able to hold."

Mrs. Buda Brown (SC, Vancouver-Point Grey) said that when two, four or six inmates may get out within a few days of each other "there is something frightfully wrong."

She said there was no wire fence around the school . . . "100 acres, very little of it cleared, practically no farming or outdoor works done . . . they don't have to break away, they generally walk out."

In 1957-58, 437 boys passed through Brannan Lake School and 11 went absent without leave.

Mrs. Brown said she did not feel the results at Brannan Lake School justify the expense of the institution.

"No institution is worth anything without discipline and by that I do not mean that they should be beaten, but there must be respect held for their teachers and directors.

"They must have planned study and recreation," she said. "It is absolutely ridiculous for any boy or group to be able to decide what physical education they wish, which is 100 per cent swimming."

She said segregation is a must at Brannan Lake School. "To allow for a young 9-year-old to be with 17-year-olds that are wise in all that is demoralizing is not human."

But Mrs. Brown said the Cassiar School for girls is worse by far than Brannan Lake School.

"These girls that go there have much less respect for discipline or authority," she said. "When boys on motorcycles roar around there . . . and the girls are allowed to talk or yell out their particular type of language from windows, or on the grounds, I claim discipline has not been a definite part of their program."

She called for a more firm, strict and disciplinary hand in juvenile correction homes.

UBC Report

CCFer Lauds Plan

Tony Gargrave (CCF, Mackenzie) Wednesday praised the proposals of the Turner report for development of the endowment lands of the University of British Columbia.

He said the plan is a wonderful example of sound regional planning.

"I like the integration of schools, parking lots and recreational grounds," Mr. Gargrave said. "Children will use the schools during the day, adults at night.

"The plan is schematic. It will grow itself—as a guide, not a mandate."

The report drawn up by Dr. David B. Turner, deputy minister of recreation and conservation, was released last week by forests minister Williston. Legislation is expected to follow to put it into effect.

The report suggests the lands be developed to provide for apartment buildings, residential lots and shopping centres on a leasehold basis, with funds going to the university.

Chiropractors Seek Inclusion

The Canadian Chiropractic Association presented a brief to the provincial government yesterday urging inclusion of chiropractic care in any national health program established under the Federal Hospital Insurance and Diagnostic Services Act.

The brief was presented to Premier Bennett and Health Minister Martin. Earlier, it was presented to Federal Health Minister Montieth in Ottawa.

It asked that funds the federal government allocates to the provinces under the diagnostic services act be made available for chiropractic treatment as well as other treatments.

Quebec Studies Metro Scheme

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — The legislature Tuesday began an item-by-item study of a bill to provide Montreal with a new metro government.

The bill would give the corporation of Montreal jurisdiction over the city of Montreal and district municipalities with the exception of two small areas.

Wenner-Gren Not Alone In Staking B.C.'s North

The Wenner-Gren interests are not dominating the staking of mineral explorations in B.C.'s northland, Mines Minister Kiernan told the legislature yesterday.

"No single company has dominated the staking picture, either by direct staking or transfer of records," he said. "At least 10 companies of substance are presently represented and about 300 individuals have staked claims."

Great Future, Of Course —But Why No Industry?

Community leaders agreed with Public Works Minister W. N. Chant yesterday that Victoria has a great future as a residential and tourist city, but didn't see that it should lack an industrial future.

Mr. Chant, in the legislature, pictured Victoria not as an industrial city like Vancouver, but as a capital city, convention and tourist city, natural centre of education and residential city, and said every effort should be made to promote it as such.

Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell said Victoria "definitely has a place for secondary industry." He pointed out that city council right now was taking steps to look into the appointment of an industrial commissioner.

And Conway Parrott, president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, had this to say:

"Primarily Victoria will always be a beautiful place to live. But there are some industries which don't contribute to smog or slum creation which would be attracted to Victoria."

Cars Part Way for Chamber

Tofino Travellers Still Have to Walk

TOFINO—Ten members of Tofino Chamber of Commerce plan on going over the new Tofino-Port Alberni road Sunday, but they will still have to walk part of the way.

They plan to leave here at 7 a.m. for the A. C. McEachern construction camp at Kennedy Lake, where transportation has been provided for them by the company. From there, they will proceed in cars over the four-mile finished portion of the road.

They will walk over the two-mile uncompleted section of the road, then go by company transportation over the finished section to Alberni.

The road is due for completion by Aug. 1 and is expected to open up the long-isolated Tofino-Ucluelet area to tourist trade and industry.

Use Forest Licences As Lever, Says MLA

Forest management licences now pending in the north of Vancouver Island should be used as the necessary leverage to force timber companies to co-operate in the building of a network of north Island roads, Dan Campbell (SC, Comox) said in the legislature yesterday.

He said Highways Minister Gaglardi and Lands and Forest Minister Williston should map out routes that would open up the Nimpkish Valley and link up Bonanza Lake with Beaver Cove and the communities of Winder Harbor, Holberg, Port Hardy, Port McNeil, Port Alice, Coal Harbor and June Landing.

Mr. Campbell said the federal government should co-operate financially to take the place of the former government ferry service which served the north Island.

He felt a start should be made on the access roads this year or 1960 at the latest. He said the government should give development of the north Island equal prominence with development of north-central British Columbia.

He said one half of Vancouver Island is involved and that 20,000 people live north Campbell River on the Island.

"It is a case of B.C. residents asking to become a part of British Columbia," he said.

He claimed the Island Highway had only been extended seven miles in 40 years.

BUDA BROWN
. . . hits giveaways

Can't Buy Them

B.C. Potatoes World's Best

"British Columbia grows just about the finest grade of potatoes in the world at Pemberton, but B.C. housewives don't seem to be able to buy them," Mrs. Buda Brown (SC, Vancouver-Point Grey) said in the legislature yesterday.

"So many times I go to the stores and do you think I can find any of our own good dry belt potatoes? Oh no! I am told that the only ones I can buy are from Idaho or parts of Washington," she complained.

Mrs. Brown also got on one of her favorite topics — giveaways.

"We buy soap flakes, each one washes much whiter than every other one, but let us get the soap flakes, not a dish towel, a plate, silver or a dozen other giveaways. The housewife wants her 89 cents worth of soap flakes . . . leave out everything else . . . the same applies to many other products such as cereals."

She said women feel there should be a different manner of sealing the plastic bags of vegetables, as well as fruit. "These tiny staples get into the contents and are often swallowed by children as well as adults," she said. "I realize that many are using a different type of sealing, but the staples should be forbidden."

Kiernan Advises Study

Atomic Energy Soon Vital to Province

Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan told the legislature yesterday that atomic energy may soon be competitive with every kind of energy except the very best hydro energy.

He advised the establishment of a provincial advisory energy council to provide the government with the broadest possible basis of information upon which to base decisions in connection with energy matters.

The council would hold public hearings where all those concerned with energy problems would have a voice.

Mr. Kiernan pointed out that wide implications arise in relation to energy.

He said it is becoming more and more apparent that soon the transmission of energy to the source of raw materials may be just as easily done as the present systems of transferring raw materials to the source of energy.

He said hydro was by no means the sole source of energy in North America and that by 1980 it is estimated hydro will provide only 4 per cent of the energy on the North American continent.

Other sources he said are coal, petroleum, natural gas and now atomic power.

He suggested that if British Columbia were to form a stringent energy policy based on hydro, it could easily be by-passed by industry.

But he said the Peace River has only scratched the surface in natural gas explorations.

"The freezing of natural gas for conversion to liquid form for easier transmission is a new development which holds tremendous implications for the future," Mr. Kiernan said. "While this technique still offers certain problems, the possibilities of this advancement in the science of energy transportation cannot be ignored," he said.

He pointed out that atomic energy, while still a long way from being competitive with either hydro power or fossil fuels, is being harnessed at an ever-increasing rate, especially in Europe.

The British Isles, he said, are pushing this type of development in order to reduce its dependency on imported oils from sources that may be curtailed. Because of its compact nature, atomic fuel also lends itself to long-distance transmission of fuel supplies, he pointed out.

He said accelerated interest in petroleum and natural gas developments and explorations in northern B.C. and in the Yukon and Northwest Territories, can be traced to the unstable political situation in the Middle East over the last few years.

'Feeder' Buses Proposed

An intermunicipal transportation committee may explore with the B.C. Electric Co. the possibility of using bus "feeder" services cutting across existing routes in some areas, especially in Esquimalt.

Reeve A. C. Wurtle of Esquimalt said yesterday this was one suggestion he had put forward in an initial meeting of the new committee and B.C. Electric representatives.

The meeting, Reeve Wurtle said, was exploratory, and company officials gave assurance they would welcome the committee's co-operation as a link with the people served by the bus system.

Next step, he said, would be to obtain exact terms of reference from the Greater Victoria councils.
